

Staying Energized and Engaged: Building Pride, Building Resilience

November 18, 2020 | 1:00-4:00 PM EST

Emerging Leaders Alumni Invited to Participate in Virtual Program

This virtual program will feature ELP star lecturer Robert Bies, Professor of Management and Founder of the Executive Master's in Leadership Program at the McDonough School of Business, Georgetown University.

Through a highly interactive and engaging session, Bies will discuss:

- Creating positive narratives as a key contributor to building a culture of pride
- Moving through adversity
- Creating practices to build resilience

Registration is only open to Emerging Leaders alumni. SNAC Business Members may register up to (2) participants, and SNAC Associate Members may register (1) participant—all others will be placed on a waiting list. In order to receive a Georgetown University certificate of completion, you must commit to having your video on and participating in the full program. To register, please contact Christina Briones, cbriones@snacintl.org.

ROBERT BIES

Professor of Management

McDonough School of Business, Georgetown University

Robert Bies is currently the Academic Director of the Executive Master's in Leadership Program for D.C. Public School Leaders. His current research focuses on leadership, the delivery of bad news, organizational justice, and revenge and forgiveness in the workplace.